

End-Of-Year Report

Faculty Affairs Committee

May 2014

The Faculty Affairs Committee reviewed the following issues during AY 2013/14:

1. Faculty 180 – campuswide, new software for the UAF Annual Activities Report (AAR)

The Faculty Affairs Committee (FAC) met with Dr. Eric Madsen to discuss Faculty 180 and voice concern regarding the efficacy and rationale for this new reporting requirement. Inefficiencies in the software for entering certain kinds of data (e.g., publications) and apparent bugs in the program pertaining to saving and revising data entered was acknowledged by Dr. Madsen. As this reporting requirement has been ratified, no further requests for extensions or exemptions were submitted by FAC.

2. Promotion/merit recognition of tenured instructors

The basic question before us was: What are the mechanisms for recognition of work accomplishments by way of promotion for tenured instructors? Research faculty generally goes through a recognized procedure for promotion, but instructional faculty does not.

When FAC met to discuss this issue we realized that the framework for such a procedure should really come from the instructors themselves. Based on these guidelines the committee was prepared to work with these instructors to develop criteria for recognition and promotion. One mechanism by which the status of tenured instructors could start on the path of promotion involved changing their description to “visiting faculty”. This opportunity was rejected by the instructors. No further initiative to advance the issue of promotion was brought to FAC and currently there are no new guidelines, but the issue is being dealt with in a sub-committee.

3. Challenges to merit recognition and responsibilities in Interdisciplinary Programs

Interdisciplinary Studies/programs/degrees are increasing, in part because of the increasing recognition of its relevance in academia and society. What are the guidelines for allocating interdisciplinary responsibilities (departmental requirements) and merit recognition (e.g., workload distribution and indirect cost recovery) in ID projects/grants?

Currently interdisciplinary research projects are typically administered through the
